Cristina Perez

Cristina Perez is the first-ever female television judge to cross-over from Spanish-language to English-language television, hosting FOX's court show "Cristina's Court."

Prior to her transition, Perez hosted the Telemundo court show La Corte de Familia ("Family Court"), one of the most popular shows in the Spanish-language network. A successful lawyer, television personality, radio host, entrepreneur/business owner, and national columnist, Perez is unique in her character. As a leader in the community, Perez is committed to community awareness. She frequently speaks at events and lectures about law, business, women and community empowerment and women's health. She is also an advocate for various charitable community and professional organizations such as Padres Contra El Cancer (Parents against Cancer), Los Angeles Bar Association, American Immigration Law Foundation and many more. In addition, Perez serves as a weekly attorney co-host on Radio Univision in Los Angeles, CA.

In 2005, Perez was selected as one of California's "Woman of the Year" for her work and leadership. She was also named as one of America's top 10 Latina Advocates by the national magazine Latino Leaders.
